

Thank you for your contribution to open science!

Dear Taako Edema George,

As part of International Open Access Week 2022, we would like to celebrate the contribution you have made to open science.

At Elsevier, we believe that open science has the power to drive societal progress and advance the United Nations (UN) Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Making knowledge freely accessible to anyone, anywhere can play a fundamental role in achieving a sustainable and equitable future.

Between 2019–2021, you published an open access article with Elsevier, receiving a total of 7,198 downloads. Your article was linked to the UN SDGs, helping to tackle some of the world's greatest challenges.

Your top downloaded open access article linked to the SDGs was:

An evaluation of the environmental	7,198	SDG 6: Ensure availability and sustainable
--	-------	--

impact assessment practice in Uganda: challenges and opportunities for achieving sustainable development

management of water and sanitation for all

SDG 8: Promote sustained, inclusive and sustainable economic growth, full and productive employment and decent work for all

SDG 14: Conserve and sustainably use the oceans, seas and marine resources for sustainable development

SDG 16: Promote peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development, provide access to justice for all and build effective, accountable and inclusive institutions at all levels

To help you celebrate Open Access Week 2022, we have created a personalized

At the heart of the open access movement are millions of researchers, just like you, whose certificate to mark your achievements which you can share with your colleagues and friends.

Share your achievements on Twitter with just one click!

efforts enable us to create a more collaborative, inclusive, and transparent world of research.

For more information on open access, please visit www.elsevier.com/authors/open-access